Being better than others

To be streets ahead of somebody/ something

Estar muy por encima de alguien/algo / jemandem meilenweit voraus sein

- American companies are still streets ahead of their European rivals.
- This nightclub is streets ahead of its local competition.
- As a company we were streets ahead of them, but they got a

To be head and shoulders above someone /something:

Estar muy por encima de alguien / jemandem meilenweit voraus sein

- There's no competition - they're head and shoulders above the rest.
- John is head and shoulders above his sister when it comes to Maths.
- Messi and Cristiano are two great players who are head and shoulders above the rest.

Run rings/circles around someone:

Darle mil vueltas a alguien / superar a alguien con creces - jemanden locker in die Tasche stecken

- Our football team have run rings round all their opponents this year.
- The home team ran rings around their opponents in the second half.
- You think you can run rings around me, but I'm going to prove you wrong.
