

MORE vs ELSE

MORE

More is used when you want extra of the same thing. It is used in a more specific sense than else.

- I've already eaten some biscuits, but I would like some more.
- Do you want more coffee?
- The staff is friendly, helpful, and some even handsome. What more can you ask for?
- The sun is out, it's Friday and it's half term. What more could you want?

ELSE

Else is used when you want to refer to something or someone different. It is used in a more general sense than more, and is commonly used with pronouns, such as anything, something, someone, anyone, nobody, anybody, etc.

- Nobody else could do that.
- I don't want cake. May I have something else instead?
- Let me know if you need anything else.
